INSTRUCTIONS TO CONTRIBUTORS

Manuscripts: Manuscripts of original articles, case reports, short communications, and special articles should be submitted to the Editor at the C.M.A.J. editorial office, 150 St. George St., Toronto, with a covering letter requesting consideration for publication in the Journal. Acceptance is subject to the understanding that they are submitted solely to this Journal, and will not be reprinted without the consent of both the Editor and the author. Articles should be typed on one side only of unruled paper, double-spaced and with wide margins. Carbon copies cannot be accepted. The author should always retain a carbon copy of manuscripts. Every article should contain a summary of the contents.

The Editor reserves the right to make the usual editorial changes in manuscripts; these include such changes as are necessary to ensure correctness of grammar and spelling, clarification of obscurities or conformity to Journal style. In no case will major changes be made without prior consultation with the author. Authors will receive galley proofs of articles before publication, and are asked to confine alterations of such proofs to a minimum.

Reprints may be ordered on a form supplied with galley proofs.

References: Authors should limit references to published reports, short communications, and special articles wishing to study the subject further. They should not quote articles they have never seen. Except in review articles, the maximum number of references should not exceed three.

Unpublished cases and personal communications should not be cited, as the reviewer cannot be sure that the facts are correct or are not influenced by the author's prejudice. Authors should not quote articles they have never seen. Except in review articles, the maximum number of references should not exceed three.

The author should always retain a carbon copy of manuscripts. Every article should contain a summary of the contents.

The Editor reserves the right to make the usual editorial changes in manuscripts; these include such changes as are necessary to ensure correctness of grammar and spelling, clarification of obscurities or conformity to Journal style. In no case will major changes be made without prior consultation with the author. Authors will receive galley proofs of articles before publication, and are asked to confine alterations of such proofs to a minimum.

References: Authors should list references to published works in the minimum necessary for guidance to readers wishing to study the subject further. They should not quote articles they have never seen. Except in review articles, the maximum number of references should not exceed three. References should be numbered in the text and should be set out in a numbered list at the end of the article, thus:

1. DOAKS, J.: M. J. Kamchatka, 1, 2, 1955, giving in order: (1) Author's name and initials in capitals. Where more than three authors are concerned in an article, only the first should be named, with et al. as reference to the others. (2) Quarterly Cumulative Index Medicus abbreviation of journal name. (3) Volume number. (4) Page number. (5) Year.

References to books should be set out as follows: Pickwick, S., Textbook of Medicine, Jones and Jones, London, 1st ed., p. 60, 1965.

Illustrations: Photographs should be glossy prints, unmounted and untrimmed, preferably not larger than 10 by 8 inches. Colour work can be published only at the author's expense. Magnification of photomicrographs must always be given. Photographs must not be written on or typed on. Identification can be made by pasting an identifying legend on the back. Patients must not be recognizable in illustrations, unless the written consent of the subject to publication has been obtained. Graphs and diagrams should be drawn in India ink on suitable white paper. Legends to all illustrations should be typed separately from the text of the article. Illustrations should not be rolled or folded.

CORRECTION

In the list of hospitals approved by the College of General Practitioners for general practice residencies (the Journal, 82, 1053, 1960), the name of Dr. C. R. Macdonald should have been given as Medical Director of the Misericordia Hospital in Edmonton, Alberta.
