EDITORIAL POLICIES FOR THE GUIDANCE OF AUTHORS

1. Kinds of articles accepted. Contributions of value to medical bibliography, medical librarianship, and the history of medical books, libraries, and librarians are solicited. No paper which has already appeared elsewhere will be accepted, nor will simultaneous publication elsewhere be permitted.

2. The editors reserve the right to return a manuscript to the author for revision if it is not in standard form or to make minor editorial changes in the manuscript if they can be made without changing the style of the article.

3. Manuscripts should not exceed twenty-five typewritten pages. They should be double spaced on one side of the paper, and illustrations should be on separate sheets. An abstract not exceeding 150 words should be included on a separate sheet; it should state the paper's major points rather than merely indicate the topics discussed. Three copies (only one copy of the illustrations needed) should be sent to the Editor, and the author should retain a copy. The official title and address of the author should be included at the head of the manuscript.

4. Illustrations should be numbered and marked with the author's name. Legends should be typed on separate sheets and be placed with the illustrations. The text should contain notations of the approximate position of the illustrations. The number of tables and illustrations should be kept at a minimum.

5. Webster's Third New International Dictionary and the University of Chicago Press Manual of Style should be used as authorities on spelling, punctuation, and form, with the exception of references and footnotes.

6. References and footnotes. References should be typed double spaced on a separate sheet and should be listed in numerical order as cited in the manuscript. Abbreviations of journal titles should be in the style of the Index Medicus, but followed by periods. Citations should follow the style illustrated below:

If footnotes are necessary, they also should be typed double spaced on a separate sheet and numbered consecutively from the beginning of the manuscript.

7. Galley proofs will be submitted to authors for the correction of printer's errors. Promptness in the return of galleys is essential.

8. Reprints may be purchased at cost. For prices, address correspondence to the Waverly Press.
