Staying the course.....

Robert B Kalina, Publisher

That which we persist in doing becomes easier, not that the task itself has become easier, but that our ability to perform it has improved.

US essayist and poet (1803–1882)

Pulsus Group Inc is about to celebrate its 25th anniversary of publishing peer-reviewed medical journals. Our stellar reputation has been built on publishing primarily Canadian specialist journals and we are proud to have consistently held true to our original mission statement “To publish, promote and disseminate the work of medical researchers in a manner that exemplifies the highest standards in research integrity.”

Pulsus Group has now taken over the publication of the International Journal of Angiology and it is a new and exciting undertaking for us in several ways. It is the first time Pulsus has acquired a journal with an established track record, it is our first journal with a largely American audience and it is only our second ‘international’ journal.

The addition of this Journal to our group, was based not only on the good fit between our organization and your Society but also for personal reasons – Dr. Kailash Prasad, the long time Senior Editor of this Journal, who was instrumental in getting Pulsus involved was my professor at the University of Saskatchewan (many years ago).

When Pulsus makes a commitment to a new journal, it is of primary importance to us. We are equally confident of the level of commitment that has been exhibited by your Society, so well represented by Dr John Chang, Dr Kailash Prasad and Denise Rossignol.

We expect and trust that you, the members, will help us continue on the path of success....
