An Index to B. F. Skinner's Particulars of My Life

Robert Epstein and Janice Kathryn Olson
Cambridge Center for Behavioral Studies

Skinner's three-part autobiography is now complete: Particulars of My Life (Alfred A. Knopf, New York, 1976) describes his life from birth until his entrance into graduate school at Harvard in 1928. The Shaping of a Behaviorist (Knopf, 1979) continues the story with an account of his years at Harvard, first as a student and then as a research fellow, and his subsequent years as a faculty member at the University of Minnesota and then Indiana University. It closes with his return to Harvard as a full professor in 1948. The final volume, A Matter of Consequences (Knopf, 1983), covers the years from 1948 to 1983 and includes a brief epilogue in which Skinner comments on the autobiography as a whole and makes some revealing and fairly general statements about himself.

The first two volumes have no index, and the third has only a brief index. We offer the following to make the autobiography more useful for scholarly purposes. It applies to both the hardcover and paperback editions. Indices for The Shaping of a Behaviorist and A Matter of Consequences will be published in future issues of this journal.
