Precordial ST-segment elevation: Which vessel is occluded and where?

B. S. N. Alzand

Published online: 15 July 2011
© Springer Media / Bohn Stafleu van Loghum 2011

Question

Two electrocardiograms of two different patients are shown in Fig. 1. Both patients presented with acute typical chest discomfort radiating to the left arm. Did one, both or none of them have an anterior wall myocardial infarction?

Answer

You will find the answer elsewhere in this issue.

B. S. N. Alzand (✉)
Department of Cardiology, University Hospital Leuven,
Herestraat 49,
3000 Leuven, Belgium
e-mail: alzand@hotmail.com

Fig. 1 12-lead electrocardiogram of two different patients, showing ST-segment elevation in both anterior and inferior leads