Letter from the Editor

Dear Fellows of the College:

I hope that you are enjoying the summer.

The Journal continues to make progress toward being PubMed indexed. Specifically, I am pleased to announce that the Journal is being approved for PubMed Central. This means that after a manuscript is approved for publication, the authors will have the choice, for a modest price, to have their paper posted on PubMed Central, which will automatically bring it to PubMed. We will continue to work hard to achieve our ultimate goal of having the entire Journal posted on PubMed. I am convinced that with your continued support, we will achieve this important goal.

We are excited to hold the Second Annual Symposium on Advancing the Standards in Wound Care in Dayton, Ohio, on Friday, September 14, 2012. I encourage you to participate in this exciting event. We are determined to bring the symposium to a national level in the very near future. We have sent out a call for posters for the event. The accepted posters will be published in a future issue of the Journal.

As part of a wider College South American initiative, the Journal is being considered for Spanish and Portuguese translation to serve our colleagues in Central and South America.

Please continue to support your Journal by sending your interesting manuscripts for review and potential publication.

Finally, I would like to thank my associate and assistant editors for their help and support.

See you in Dayton.

Cordially,

*Richard Simman, MD, FACS, FACCWS
Editor in Chief, JACCWS*
