Sean J. Langenfeld, MD, FACSScott R. Steele, MD, FACS, FASCRS¹¹ Division of Colorectal Surgery, University Hospitals Case Medical Center, Case Western Reserve University, Ohio

Clin Colon Rectal Surg 2016;29:1–2.

Dr. Sean Langenfeld is a staff colon and rectal surgeon at the University of Nebraska Medical Center in Omaha, NE. Sean received his undergraduate and medical school training at St. Louis University in St. Louis, MO, and performed his General Surgery Residency training at the University of Kansas School of Medicine, Wichita, KS. Following this, Sean completed his Colon and Rectal Surgery residency at the University of Texas, in Houston, TX. Since that time he has been at the University of Nebraska where he is as an Assistant Professor of Surgery and also serves as the Associate Program Director for the General Surgery Residency. He is also the Director, Endoscopic Simulation at the University of Nebraska Medical Center.

Sean remains a busy active clinician and academic surgeon, teaching residents on a daily basis. He is an active researcher and has several ongoing projects on the use of social media in surgery and simulation training in the era of the modern residency. He is an active participant in multiple surgical societies and serves on several national committees of the American Society of Colon and Rectal Surgeons.

Sean and his wife, Elizabeth, have three children, and live in Omaha, NE. When not working, Sean enjoys playing in a men's soccer league, watching all Creighton Bluejays' sports teams, and is a huge Nebraska Cornhusker football fan.

On behalf of the readers and staff of Clinics of Colon and Rectal Surgery, I sincerely thank Dr. Langenfeld for serving as a Guest Editor and for providing us with a superb issue on anorectal disease.
